

Consent Form for the Communication of Personal Information

Two researchers from the Groupe de recherche sur l'inadaptation psychosociale chez l'enfant (GRIP), Amélie Petitclerc from Université Laval and Natalie Castellanos-Ryan from Université de Montréal, would like to carry out two more projects with you and would like to contact you in 2023 and 2024 to present these projects to you. Amélie Petitclerc's project is about parenting, and Natalie Castellanos-Ryan's project is about cannabis use and cognition.

Statistique Québec is obligated to protect your personal information, which means that we need your permission to share your contact information with these two researchers. Please indicate if you consent to your contact information being shared with Amélie Petitclerc and Natalie Castellanos-Ryan's research teams. They commit to keeping your information strictly confidential, and to keeping it only for the period during which the special projects will take place.

If you give your consent, the research teams will contact you to explain their projects. You will then be free to decide if you wish to participate or not. Consenting to your contact information being shared with the research teams does not imply any commitment to the GRIP on your part.
